TEAMBUILDING THROUGH CHALLENGE

Join Professor Graeme Addison of AsAfrica to develop the leadership and loyalty that builds great teams. Addison is a communication specialist who has spent a life in adventure. He pioneered South Africa's whitewater rafting industry and launched the first mountain biking operation in the country. As Professor of Communication, he has taught generations of South Africans to breach racial, gender and education barriers for the sake of common progress and wellbeing. As Director of Adventure Standards Africa (AsAfrica) he trains, assesses and qualifies tour guides for careers in the outdoors. As the author of several books on innovations in SA science & technology he knows and understands how businesses succeed through creative alignment.

YOUR GETAWAY AT THE VAAL

Based at Otters' Haunt, 3km from Parys, our training centre has a compact conference centre with all necessary presentation facilities.

We specialize in small groups numbering 5-35 people. Activities can suit either gender at any level of fitness.

The emphasis is always on understanding and implementing team values by tackling challenges together.

'Addison brings years of thought, action and maturity to the job of inspiring people to work together and get results. And he makes it a lot of fun. It's all about discovery.'

Tell us your needs and what you seek to achieve.
